Dear Parents/Carers,

This week the children have been learning about Brazil and the Amazon Rainforest. They have been extremely enthusiastic about their learning, particularly about the rainforest creatures. The children have been writing about their favourite facts.

During Maths this week, the children have been using their fingers to find out how many objects are hiding from a group of 10 counters. They have worked this out by firstly saying how many counters they can see.

Our topic for next term is 'Under the Sea' and the topic will start on the third week of term, as in the first two weeks, the children are learning about the artist, Jackson Pollock (as part of the whole school art and music themed weeks). Jackson Pollock is an artist who created art by flicking and splattering paint. As you can imagine children really enjoy using these techniques to create their own piece of art, but it can get messy. Could I ask that the children wear their oldest uniform for the first two weeks?

Have a lovely half term break

Thank you for your continued support.
